IN THE BASEBALL WORLD. MATHEWSON LOSES THE GAME FOR NEW YORK NATIONALS.

Ferces in a Chicago Run and Locals Are Shut Out-Pirates Win and Are Within One Point of the Lead-Cincinnatis

Drub the Philadelphias-Other Games New York's hold on first place in the National League is very insecure, as a result of yesterday's games. The locals were shut out by the Chicagos and the Pittsburgs beat the Bostons, reducing New York's margi of advantage to one point. The Cincinnatis won in Philadelphia. Brooklyn and St. Louis were scheduled to play in Brooklyn, but the gates were closed on account of the Suburban.

HARVARD DEFEATS OLD ELI. GOLFING ON MANY LINKS. Wins First Ball Game of Series by Score

CAMBRIDGE, June 18.—Harvard beat Yale to-day in the first baseball game of the series. Harvard made an early start in scoring, and it was this fact that won the game for the Crimson. In the first inning, with Bowman in the box, Harvard made three runs, and in the second, she added another. In the third, Bowman was taken out and Patton put in his place. Patton did much better.
Yale played a mighty plucky game, much better than the score would indicate. After the second inning she was fully equal to Harvard, both at the bat and in the field. but the lead which Harvard took early in the game was too great to overcome. It was in the ninth inning that Yale made her desperate fight, just as she has so often done before, but it came too late. After two mer were out on grounders. Winslow and Cote, who was put in to bat in Patton's place, singled, and on a double steal advanced to third and second. Then Barnes was up, and the agony began for Harvard.

Barnes touched the elusive curves of Clarkson for foul after foul until the call on him was three balls and two strikes. He fouled some more and then took chances on one, which was a beautiful strike over the middle of the plate, and Umpire Holliday called him out. Harvard gave a cheer of relief and at once started to celebrate the first athletic once started to celebrate the first athletic victory which she has won from Yale this year.

The game was a most interesting one for the spectators, but it was not a first-class article of baseball. Harvard made five errors, while Yale made three, and both teams suffered because of misplays. The glory of the day went to Walter Clarkson and Joe Patton. Both pitchers played good baseball, and in the contest Clarkson was the better of the two. The Elis touched him for seven hits, but he kept them well scattered, and only one was better than a single. Patton was the hero for the losers. He was in great form and it was fortunate for Harvard that he did not go in the first inning.

One of the features of the day was the presence of the Harvard baseball team of twenty-five years ago, which won its series from Yale. The Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team was at the game in a body.

Had he been driven out the game son of McDuff-Manola Mason could certainly have set a new mark for others to shout about for days to come. McChesney received a perfect ride. At the head of the stretch the result was a foregone conclusion, as McChesney was second a neck behind Sam Fullen and two lengths in front of the balance of the field.

In the last eighth the big horse simply toyed with the contenders and had Dominick desired he could have won by half a dozen lengths. The ovation given to McChesney when he returned to the judges' stand was equal to that of a Derby winner.

Odds of 8 to 5 were offered in the opening betting on the entry. Favonius being coupled with McChesney. LINES OF THE CHALLENGER EX-POSED TO VIEW.

New Boat Is of a Wholesome Type With Full Body and Easy Lines—Beam Is 25 Feet 8 Inches—Experts Think That She Will He an Easy Boat to Drive

The Cup challenger, Shamrock III., and her trial boat, the Shamrock I., were successfully docked early yesterday morning. The yachts were floated into the dock shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning and they were fully exposed to view by half-past 6 o'clock. Then the crews of each yacht got to work cleaning the underbodies. The bronze of the old challenger was foul and discolored, and it took lots of burnishing to get it clean. The underbody of the challenger was clean and smooth, except for a few spots where the white enamel, with which the steel is coated, had blistered. This white enamel is perfectly smooth and makes a hard surface. It was thought by those who saw the yacht that it would offer no more resistance than the burnished metal of the Reliance or Constitution.

Where the enamel had blistered it was scraped off, and then the steel was made perfectly smooth and fresh enamel paint put on the spot. As the yachts will be it the dry dock until Monday morning this will be thoroughly hardened.

On the Shamrock I. the spars, which are all in position, were scraped and the men began to paint them in the afternoon. This yacht, although only to be used as a trial boat, will be in as fine condition as it is possible to make her by the time Sir Thomas Lipton and Mr. Fife arrive here on Wednes-

Shamrock III. is a very wholesome type Shamrock III. is a very wholesome type of boat and, as such, she came in for lots of praise from those who saw her. Her model does not show that she has the power that she has shown in her trials, but she has plenty of beam, a full body, and her lead is bulbed and carried very low. Her lines are easy and fair. The sides turn easily at the bilges into the floor and the turn at the garboards into the fin is again easy. She is a fuller bodied boat than any that has raced for the America's Cup in many years, and it will be interesting to see what she can do.

and it will be interesting to see what she can do.

Herreshoff and Fife have worked on very different lines. Fife, some years ago, taught many a lesson with his Minerva, and it is possible that his Shamrock III. may prove that power is not the only thing to be considered when looking for speed, but that a sweetly turned model with moderate spread of canvas may do better than a boat of extreme type with a large spread.

The greatest draught of the Shamrock III. is at the heel of the rudder post, and at that point she is 19 feet 6 inches from the water line. The rudder, which is of wood, has much more rake than the rudder of the last challenger, and this, together with the shortness of her fin, will account in a large measure for the yacht's quickness in going about. bout.
From the heel of the rudder post to the point forward, where the lead takes a turn upward, is about 17 feet 6 inches, and at that forward point the lead is about two feet higher than at the after end. The curve at the forward end is an easy one to a point where the lead ends and then there is a perpendicular rise for about five feet. Then the line of the boat takes an easy curve.

It was learned yesterday on good authority that the beam of the challenger is 25 feet 3 inches, which is much more than was originally reported and more than the first two Shamrocks had.

Among those who visited the Erie Basin yesterday to look at the challenger were ex-Commodore S. Nicholson Kane, Newbury D. Lawton, Robert Bacon, W. B. Duncan, Jr., Newberry D. Thorne, ex-Commodore E. D. Morgan, Irving Cox, W. Starling Burgess, George Cormack and John Hyslop.

Mr. Hyslop, who has measured the Cup challengers and defenders for many years, carefully studied the yacht and was very much impressed with her model. He said to a reporter of The Sun:

"She should be a very easy boat to drive and she does not show the power she evidently possesses. She has a very different section from anything that they have brought out before. Just see the convexity of her form forward. She has a large amount of strength forward and no liability of pounding in a seaway and nothing to kill her speed. Her sections have considerable dead rise, while the floor of the Reliance is just the opposite, being very flat in comparison with this boat. She is a sweet-looking craft. Her bilge is deep and is carried well forward and aft. She is a sweet-looking craft. Her bilge is deep and is carried well forward and aft. She is a boat that will heel very easily, and when she does she will sail on a very long floor. She is a wonderfully modelled boat, absolutely fair and beautifully finished."

W. B. Duncan, Jr., looked her over carefully and then said: "I am not frightened and never am at anything that they bring over for the Cup."

Commodore Kane would not express an opinion. One yachtsman exclaimed: "She has plenty of lead to balance it."

By orders of Designer Fife no photographers were allowed near the yacht. Several special officers were stationed around the basin, and once or twice during the day they caused lots of fun chasing men with cameras who had entered the yard from the waterfront. One man came dangerously near falling into the water in

Bicycle Curiosity

The average purchaser of a bicycle is naturally curious. He who understands the bicycle invariably insists on a close inspection and examination before buying. Last week we offered several good specials in the bicycle line with the result that both days we were kept busy making sales. High grade bicycles, both this year's and last year's models, are being sold by us at ridiculously low prices. The offer that is attracting a great deal of attention is the new VICTOR BICYCLE, with coaster brake, at $25.00. Spalding Juvenile bicycles at prices that are attractive. The Spalding nameplate on a juvenile wheel is all that the youngster looks for in the way of a guarantee.

Jack Pilminer, a brother of Billy Pilminer, the former bantam champion of the world, made his debut as a purallist the other night before one of the London athletic clubs. Pilminer met Joe Pugo for $150 a side and a purse. The bout was for affect rounds, but in the thirteenth Pugh caught Pilminer heavily on the Jaw and knocked him out.

The London Sporting Life of June 4 contains the following paragraph: "Jack Palmer would like to hear from Jack (I'win) Sullivan of Boston respecting another match for the middleweight championship of England. Palmer is prepared to box Sullivan for $1.000 a side and the best purse offered in England."

Buffalo sports have a high opinion of the ability of Al Limerick, the heavyweight who Jumped into prominence recently by making such a fine showing against Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia O'Brien thinks a great deal of Limerick's prowess, and has taken Limerick under his wing. Limerick will in all probability be matched in a few days to meet Gus Ruhlin before the International A. C. of Fort Erie. Jack Herman of that club has offered a purse for the match.

Little is heard these days regarding Jack Muners the Butter mines who was to a purse for meet for ordered. Gossip of the Ring.
